Organic Food Markets appointed as interim managers of the Markets at Glebe Public School

Organic Food Markets are excited to have been appointed as interim managers and look forward to working with stallholders and market visitors on our first market day in Glebe on 11 March, ensuring the continuity of the market for the local community. Organic Food Markets' is a family-owned and operated business that has been operating markets across Sydney for the past three decades.

As custodians of the Markets at Glebe Public School, we plan to continue the operation of the market under current practices that have been so popular with the inner west community for the past 30 years. The market will be closed for schoolyard maintenance on 4 March before recommencing weekly from 11 March.

All traders should register on organicfoodmarkets.com.au as soon as possible.

After the news that David and Naomi McCumstie had decided to end their management of Glebe Markets, Organic Food Markets was engaged on an interim arrangement by the Department of Education to manage the widely loved Markets at Glebe Public School.

Organic Food Markets have had a long and cordial relationship with David and respect the McCumstie's decision to retire after almost three decades. Markets are demanding weekly events that take a lot of work to build into thriving weekly venues for the local community to enjoy.

Organic Food Markets commends the McCumstie family for their dedication and hard work over many years and looks forward to continuing the Market at Glebe Public school in its present, well loved form.
